SPORT AGAINST GENDER INEQUALITY

ACTIVITY WORKBOOK 5
VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN AND GIRLS

Online Sport for Development Activity
Resource in Response to COVID-19
This activity workbook, part of the Sport Against Gender Inequality (SAGI) online resource pack, provides practitioners with a guided sport activity-based session to help mixed-gender participants understand how violence against women and girls manifests in our societies, and learn how they can tackle gender-based stereotypes and violence in their families, communities, among peers and within local institutions.

These resources have been adapted from the Kadam Badhate Chalo programme with the support of the Commonwealth Secretariat, so that they can continue to be used in contexts where isolation or public hygiene conditions must be observed, or in contexts where health and safety regulations require modification.

You will have the option of conducting this session via an online platform or in-person. Information pertaining to safeguarding during online and in-person sessions will be outlined within the workbook, along with all necessary safety precautions to be taken pertaining to COVID-19 for in-person sessions.

Gender Equality & Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)

Gender inequality is a global and pervasive phenomenon that disproportionately affects women and girls worldwide. Given this context, the SAGI online resource will enable the achievement of the following targets outlined within SDG 5: Gender Equality:

- 5.1: End all forms of discrimination against all women and girls everywhere.
• 5.2: Eliminate all forms of violence against all women and girls in the public and private spheres, including trafficking and sexual and other types of exploitation.
• 5.3: Eliminate all harmful practices, such as child, early and forced marriage and female genital mutilation.
• 5.5: Ensure women’s full and effective participation and equal opportunities for leadership at all levels of decision-making in political, economic and public life.

SAGI will utilise sports-based activities to create safe spaces in order to assist practitioners to engage with young people of all genders so that they can learn and unlearn their pre-conceived notions about gender and develop leadership capability. Using sport as an underlying methodology, SAGI builds the capacity, resilience and confidence of adolescents to recognize, resist and take action on issues of violence against women/girls in their own families, communities and local institutions, and encourages them to take collective action in order to bring a positive shift in mindsets of various stakeholders.

Moreover, the joint collaboration by PSD, MFF and the Commonwealth Secretariat has enabled the development of SAGI, by combining diverse expertise, experience and resources in order to share evidence-based approaches with practitioners to enable the above-mentioned targets relating to SDG 5. Hence, SAGI contributes towards SDG 17: Partnerships for the Goals, specifically the following targets:

• 17.9: Enhance international support for implementing effective and targeted capacity-building in developing countries to support national plans to implement all the sustainable development goals, including through North-South, South-South and triangular cooperation.
• 17.16: Enhance the global partnership for sustainable development, complemented by multi-stakeholder partnerships that mobilize and share knowledge, expertise, technology and financial resources, to support the achievement of the sustainable development goals in all countries, in particular developing countries.

It is extremely important that instructors follow the below-mentioned safeguarding best practices and COVID-19 guidelines while delivering the session in-person.

Safeguarding Best Practices

- Always put the welfare of the participant first.
- Treat all participants equally, with respect and dignity. This includes ensuring that your activities are accessible for all participants.
- Do not neglect participants, and ensure that you are praising everyone within the group.
- Work in an open environment and avoid private or unobserved situations, where possible.
- Encourage open communication.
- Maintain a safe and appropriate distance from participants and avoid unnecessary physical contact with them.
- When working with mixed-gender groups, consider having instructors of different genders.
- Do not over-train or over exhaust the participants. Make sure they are given appropriate break time.
- Ensure the use of safe and proper equipment.
- Keep a written record of any abuse that occurs during the session, or if you identify any potential signs of abuse, along with details of action taken.
- Take permission before touching a child, even if it is to tend to an injury.
Choose an accessible online platform which has robust privacy and security settings.

Monitor who has access to the participants’ online profiles, and safeguard them from potential abuse from strangers or anonymous accounts.

Use online accounts that have been authorised by the organisation to communicate with the children. Never use personal accounts.

Be mindful of your body language, and ensure that the clothing that you are wearing is appropriate.

Set appropriate online behavioural standards which are applicable to instructors and children. Ensure use of age appropriate and respectful language.

Ensure the communication is relevant to the session and the material at hand; prevent participants from disclosing personal and private information.

Ensure that all participants are included in the discussions and activities being conducted online.

Put in place strict moderation guidelines, which clearly indicate what is allowed and what is not allowed to be posted.

Ensure that your online content is accessible to all participants and, if needed, caters to their special needs.
Conduct activities outdoors rather than indoors for better ventilation.
Ensure availability to handwashing, alcohol-based hand sanitizers and hygiene facilities.
Ask all participants to wash or sanitize their hands before and after the activity.
Ensure that all participants are using face coverings and/or masks that cover both their face and nose.
Ask participants to bring their own water bottles, and do not allow them to share their water with others.
Do not allow participants to share any personal items with other participants.
Avoid hand shaking, hugs, or any contact between participants – come up with new, creative ways of congratulating or expressing other emotions.
Do not share equipment between participants. If equipment has to be shared, ensure that it is thoroughly sanitized before being handed over to a new participant.
Ask participants and instructors who are feeling sick or who have been in contact with a sick person to avoid attending the sessions.
Tips to deliver the activity

Ensure that there is equal participation of everyone: Give equal opportunities to all participants, irrespective of gender, ability, religion, caste or age, to participate in the games. Encourage all participants in the session to equally and actively participate in it, and ensure no one is left behind.

Respect for different genders: Ensure mixed-gender teams are created so that all participants encourage, respect and learn from participants of various genders.

Support or appreciation of each others’ efforts: Encourage cheering on fellow participants and promoting positive feedback between themselves during games.

Having mutual respect for each other: Mutual respect between participants as well as participant-instructor relationships should be reinforced during games and must be apparent during communication.
Tips to deliver the activity

Ensuring fairplay and honesty: Encourage participants to follow the rules of the games and activities, and to be honest with their teammates, opponents and the instructor (for eg. keeping an accurate count of the score/points in a game).

Listen to every participants’ suggestion: Communication between participants and instructors should be positive at all times. This will help encourage a participant’s confidence and enhance self-esteem.

No participant is discriminated against: Participants should be treated equally and given an equal opportunity to participate and express themselves during games.

Give every participant the opportunity to express their ideas and feelings: The instructor should consider a participant’s ideas and suggestions, give added responsibility to individuals, and allow them to make decisions during the session.
De-brief & Conclusion (20 minutes)

In-person De-brief

- Gather all the participants together after the completion of the activity; ensure all participants are wearing their masks or covering their faces with a cloth and keeping a minimum distance of 1 meter between each other.
- Lead the de-brief with the whole group together.
- Ask participants to imagine the following:
  - When you were playing the game, think of the time you were the runner. How difficult was it to dodge the taggers? Why?
  - Now imagine that the taggers were members of society — your family, friends, village/community, etc.
  - With this in mind, think of the types of violence that are perpetuated on you by society, or perpetuated by society on various individuals — this need not be a personal story.
  - Give all participants the opportunity to provide instances of violence they might have experienced/know of.
- Discuss the situations from the situation sheet with the participants, and ask them to label these as either ‘Violence’, ‘Not Violence’ or ‘Not Sure’.
  - Each response should be discussed to emphasise women’s rights, freedom of choice and freedom of space.
  - Ask participants what they understand by the term ‘Violence’, and use the discussion to make them understand the reality of VAW/G.
  - Lead a discussion on the various types of violence that women/girls face in everyday life. (for e.g.: female foeticide, acid attack, domestic violence, rape, sexual harassment, etc.)
- Conclude the session by thanking the participants for their active participation and highlighting the main learning outcomes of the session.
Online De-brief

- Ask participants the reason for choosing their responses for each statement. Each response should be discussed to emphasise women’s rights, freedom of choice and freedom of space.
- Ask the participants the following questions:
  - Do they notice any difference in the kinds of violence the statements addressed?
  - Have any of them heard of such examples or perhaps faced any such incidents?
  - What did they do? What should they do?
- De-brief the session with a discussion on the various types of violence that women/girls face in everyday life. (for e.g.: female foeticide, acid attack, domestic violence, rape, sexual harassment, etc.)
- By the end of the discussion, there should be a realisation that the attitudes and behaviour of the society/community/people needs to be changed to end violence against women.
- Conclude the session by thanking the participants for their active participation and highlighting the main learning outcomes of the session.
